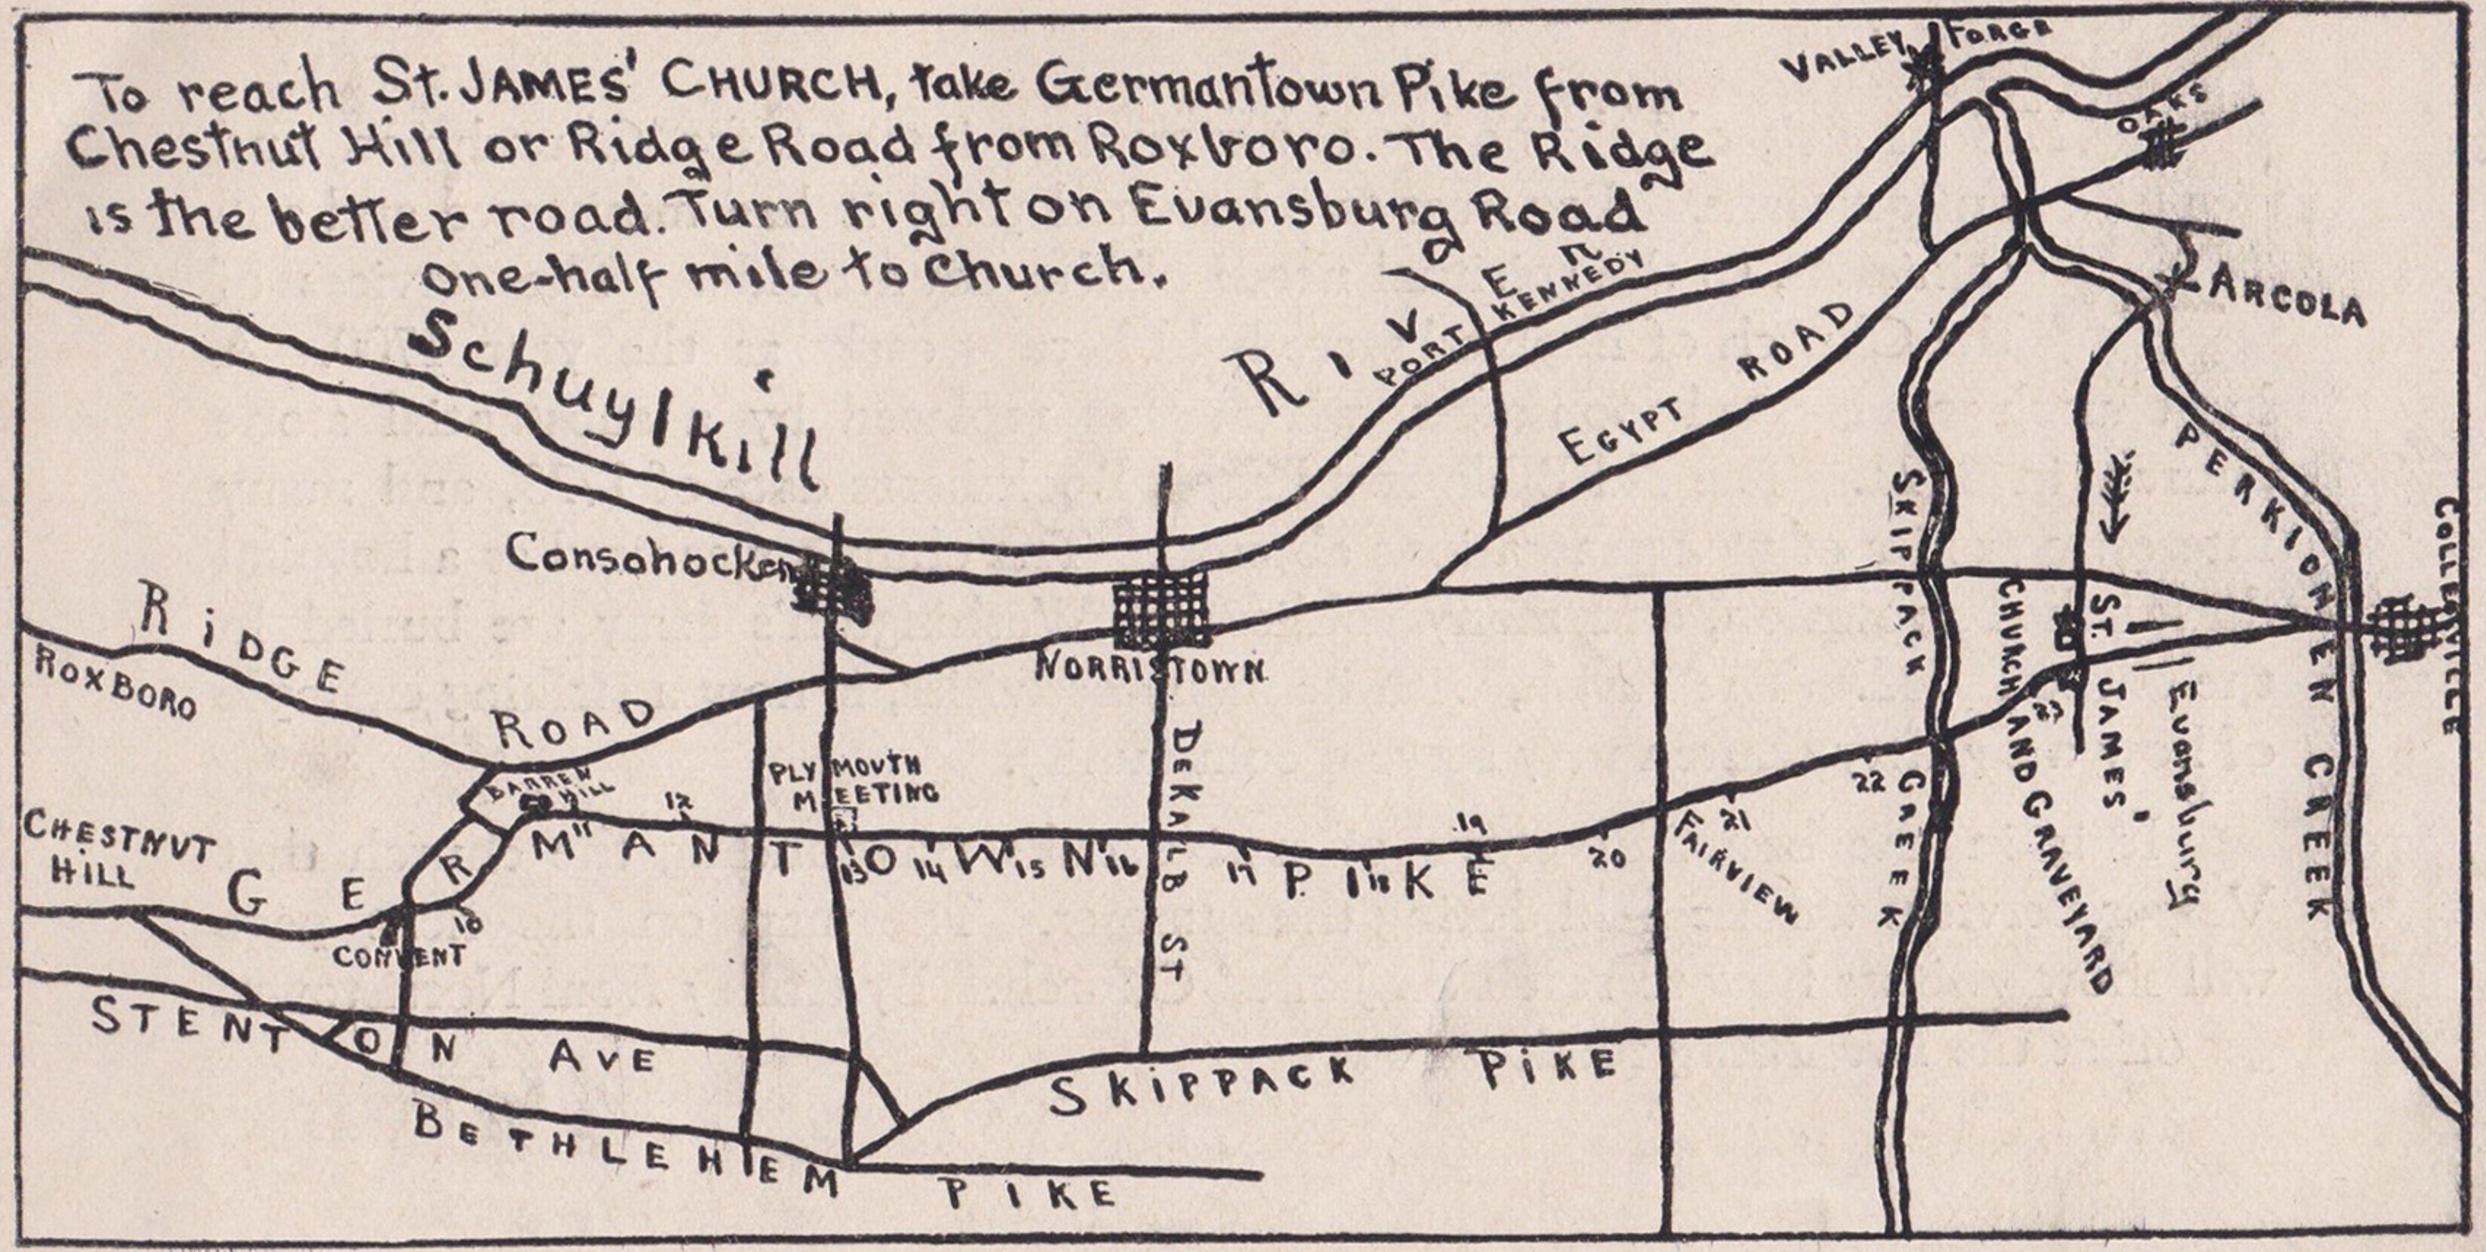
THIS historic old shrine has the extremest interest for Churchmen and antiquarians. For over two hundred years it has ministered and still ministers, to the spiritual needs of the countryside. The services of the Church of England were held here as early as the year 1700. A log church was erected soon after, which was replaced by a substantial stone church in 1721. The old Bible and Prayer Book bears date of 1723, and many interesting relics of past generations abound. The church was used as a hospital during the Revolution, and many soldiers of Washington's army are buried in the church yard. The Parish, with its many activities, is now a striking example of how a country church may serve a community.

It is in the beautiful grove of native oaks surrounding the church that Vesper Services will be held during the summer. The map on the next page will show visitors how to reach St. James' Church. By trolley from Norristown, get off at the Evansburg road.


To reach St. JAMES' CHURCH, take Germantown Pike from Chestnut Hill or Ridge Road from Roxboro. The Ridge is the better road. Turn right on Evansburg Road one-half mile to Church.
